Our Mecanoo building

- 1 wish: TU Delft Library as vital link between research and education
- 2 the space at the library is not used optimally
- 3 decrease in use of traditional library products and services

Special rules during exam weeks

ouwe regels!

Centrale Hal en de Kegel van de bibliotheek worden een soort "kennisskamer": je kunt er relaxed zitten en ten met anderen, studeren, nputeren en drinken. Het is thuis: als je dorst hebt, drink je en als je honger hebt, eet je iets. ar tijdens de tentamens is het een e huiskamer zodat er in rust tudeerd kan worden.

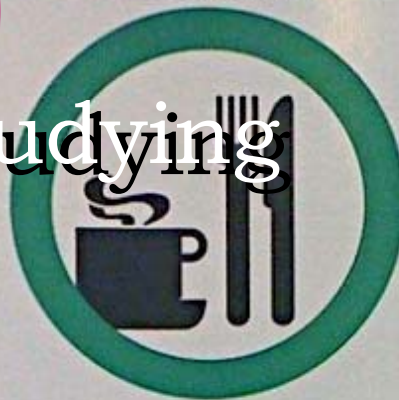

Special rules during exam weeks

New rules!

The library's Central Hall and Cone are turning into a 'knowledge lounge': you will be able to relax and chat with others, to study, to use your computer and to work in groups. And just like at home you can have a bite to eat or something to drink whenever you feel like it. But during the exam period, it will become a quiet lounge, so you can study in peace.
